TOM MOONEY SUCCUMBS AT AGE OF 58

Labor Leader Had Served 22 Years In Prison For Parade Bombing.

WAS FREED IN 1939

Death Follows Fourth Major Abdominal Operation In San Francisco.

(By Associated Press)

SAN FRANCISCO — Tom Mooney, 58, labor leader who served 22 years in prison for the 1916 San Francisco preparedness parade bombing, died in St. Luke's hospital early today.

The grey-haired Mooney, released in 1939 from San Quentin prison, underwent his fourth major abdominal operation last Monday.

He was believed recovering satisfactorialy only yesterday, but at 1:20 a. m. today he lapsed into unconsciousness and died at 2:25 a. m. PWT. His sister, Anna, and his brother, John, were at the bedside.

Mooney and Warren K. Billings were convicted respectively of first and second degree murder in the Market street blast which killed 10 persons and injured 40.

President Wilson intervened and Mooney's death sentence was commuted to life imprisonment, the sentence Billings received.

Through the years Mooney fought for freedom, contending he was "framed" by perjured testimony because of his activities as a labor organizer.

Labor and other groups clamored for his freedom and his case went before the United States supreme court four times. He was pardoned Jan. 7, 1939, by California's new democratic governor, Culbert L. Olson.

In his 22 years behind San Quentin walls Mooney became a "cause celebre" of militant labor throughout the world, a political issue, the subject of legislative debate, the center of congressional investigations, the imprisoned hero

UP IT GOES!

Congress Set To Raise U. S. Debt Limit to 125 Billion.

WASHINGTON —(INS)— Warned by Secretary of Treasury Henry Morgenthau that without such action federal borrowing to finance the war must end next month, the house ways and means committee today approved legislation to raise the legal debt limit on the national debt from $65,000,000,000 to $125,000,000,000.

Rep. Doughton (D., N. C.) chairman of the committee, said the bill will be rushed through the house in an unusual Saturday session tomorrow.

Committee action came swiftly after Morgenthau declared that the huge figures "should frighten no one but our enemies."

WPB FREEZES TYPEWRITERS

All Sales Stopped Under New Ration Plan; Glass Jar Output Speeded.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — With typewriters ordered rationed overnight, and with the problem of metal shortages becoming more acute daily, war production board officials today mapped a program for increased glass container production to help supplant tin cans.

Production of jars, bottles, glasses and cups will be stepped up by the millions under the plan.

Late yesterday, the WPB ordered all deliveries and sales frozen on new and used typewriters, effective as of midnight last night. In addition it prohibited further typewriter rentals and directed that all machines now out on rental be returned by April 1.

On the food preserving front, there is no glass shortage, but there is a shortage of time and machines to make glass containers. Plain, simple glass container products will be the order of the day, with eye-catching flasks and fancy designs eliminated.

Another change will be a shift to larger containers, since they require less glass than smaller receptacles. A single container for a half-gallon of milk, for example, weighs exactly half as much as the half-pint bottles required to handle the same volume.

Jailed Yodelers Sing While They Await Hearings

The Richland county jail, which earlier this week acquired its first Indian prisoner in recent years, today had a girl team of yodelers who gave a demonstration of their talent for the sheriff's staff.

Members of a company of entertainers in Mansfield, the two young women were held with a 35-year-old man on charges of contributing to the delinquency of the three minor children of one of the singers.

Held for probate court action were Mrs. Jeannette Poff, 28, mother of the three children; William Smallwood, 35, and Miss Margaret Harper, 18. All gave their address as 153½ North Main street.

Charges against the trio were filed by Mrs. Poff's husband, Louis

GOALS SET UP FOR WARTIME FARMING HERE

FSA Calls For Production Boosts Up To 50 Per Cent on Richland Farms.

HUNDREDS AFFECTED

Increases Requested In Pork, Sheep, Soybeans, Eggs; Urge Larger Gardens.

Wartime food production goals calling for increases ranging up to 50 per cent in certain 1942 farm crops over last year were set up today for hundreds of farmers in the Mansfield district by the Farm Security Administration.

The FSA goals are considerably higher than those established for all farmers by the U. S. department of agriculture and the Richland county war board.

J. Alden Payn, county FSA supervisor, said the FSA production goals apply primarily to farmers who are participating in the FSA program although other farmers may use the goals to help them increase their production of food for the nation's armed forces and to send to stricken people overseas.

The FSA program calls for increases of 20 per cent in pork production this year, 20 per cent in sheep, 30 per cent in soybeans on level ground only, 50 per cent in egg production, 40 pounds more of butterfat per cow, and the planting of one-fifth acre of garden per person.

Payn said a number of families already have arranged to plant larger gardens and raise sorghum as a substitute for sugar.

He estimated that 1,400 farm families in Richland and adjoining counties will be affected by the quotas. The FSA loans federal funds to farmers for purchasing seed, livestock, and necessary farm equipment. Borrowers under the program receive free assistance in setting up farm and home budgets, farm production programs, and housekeeping aid.

A meeting designed for landlords of FSA clients will be held at 8 p. m. March 10 in the Chamber of Commerce rooms in Mansfield, Payn said today.

Discussion of farm leases and the problems of tenants' problems will feature the session which will be in charge of Herman Lehnhart, chairman of the county FSA advisory council committee

Sugar Rationing Cards Reach Mansfield

Sugar rationing cards arrived in Mansfield yesterday, and before long teachers throughout Richland county will be filling them out for each person in the county entitled to receive sugar. Under the rationing plan, a maximum of eight ounces per person per week is allowed. The cards were shipped to the county clerk of courts, Howard Wenning. Mrs. Edith Miller, deputy in the office of Probate Judge S. H. Cramer, is shown here sitting on a stack of cartons of rationing cards, holding a folded card — an important item to have, if you have a sweet tooth.

Ninety Dark Days of War But Turn of Tide's Near

Signs Point to More Aggressive Blows to Be Struck Against Axis; Alaska Due for Attack?

By HARRISON SALISBURY
(UP Staff Correspondent)

Three months ago tomorrow Japanese planes stabbed through the quiet Hawaiian skies and brought war to America—the greatest war the world has ever seen.

Ninety days have passed—ninety days of globe-girdling war.

Pearl Harbor . . . Guam . . . Wake . . . Midway . . . the Philippines and Gen. Douglas MacArthur . . . Hongkong . . . Malaya . . . Singapore . . . Burma road . . . the Dutch Indies . . . Australia's outposts.

Today there are signs that many dark days still lie ahead. But there were signs, too, that the tide is turning. Already America has struck aggressive blows at the Axis and more are in the making.

Today America is strengthening its grip on the vital lifelines—the thousands of miles of sea lanes across which the red blood of men and war machines must be pumped for the great offensives necessary to defeat the Axis.

Abandoned Mt. Gilead Railroad To Help Defense Cause.

MT. GILEAD — The nation's war effort will be bolstered by 1,300 tons of scrap steel as the result of village council's action to salvage the "Mt. Gilead short line," said to be the world's shortest railroad.

Rails from the 1.4 miles of railroad were sold to the Malo Bros of Marion which plans to remove them immediately.

The line, installed in 1880, was abandoned in 1929. It ran from Mt. Gilead to Edison, west of here, to connect Mt. Gilead with the Big Four branch of the New York Central railroad.

Stork Busy Delivering 1,081 Babies In Mansfield In 1941

Mansfield had a crop of 1,081 babies born in 1941, an all-time high and 166 more than were born during the previous year.

This was disclosed today in the annual report of the Mansfield board of health released by Dr. William B. Wild, city-county health commissioner.

Dr. Wild also reported a slight gain in the death rate with 519 persons dying in 1941 as compared to 482 in 19[illegible] but he pointed out that the total of births was more than double the number of deaths.

"The most striking item in our vital statistics division for 1941," said Dr. Wild, "is the increase in the birth rate. The 1,081 baths reported gives us a rate of 28.7 live births per thousand population."

Wild reported that the births were almost evenly divided between boys and girls.

The death rate for the city during 1941 was only 13.8 per 1,000 population and 65 per cent of the 519 deaths reported were persons of 65 years or more. Persons be-

WASHINGTON —(AP)— A $32,762,737,900 appropriations bill—the largest in history—was signed today by President Roosevelt to provide vast additional funds for the army, lend-lease aid, and the maritime commission

The new allotments brought to more than $142,000,000,000 the total appropriated thus far for defense and war during the years 1941, '42 and '43.

Included was close to $23,000,000,000 for the army, with a clause attached permitting diversion of approximately half of the materiel that amount will provide to the Allies in the form of lend-lease aid.

80,000 RATION BOOKS ARRIVE

Big Shipment Sent Here as Program Progresses To Allot Sugar.

Richland county's allotment of more than 80,000 sugar rationing books which will be distributed through the city and county schools late this month was received today by Howard Wenning, county clerk of courts.

The books actually are not books at all but flat sheets of paper which can be folded two ways to make an eight-page folder. At the bottom of the book are two rows of stamps—28 in all—which must be used when purchasing sugar under the government rationing program.

Shipped in 17 large boxes, the ration books weigh several hundred pounds. They will be held by the county clerk until orders are issued to distribute them to sugar users. Purchasers and users of sugar must register at elementary schools during a four-day registration period

'Production Now' Plan In Mt. Gilead Wins FDR's Praise

President Roosevelt thinks the "Production Now" plan proposed some two weeks ago in Mt. Gilead is an excellent one and something that could be adapted by many other communities

He made the statement in his regular press conference today, adding that he had been told that "about the only people who have opposed this plan are the local bankers," according to United Press dispatches from Washington.

The "Production Now" plan was developed by Frederick Sweet, 32, former Mt. Gilead newspaper editor, later appointed to the Office of Price Administration in Washington. He returned to Mt. Gilead recently and outlined his idea, which called for pooling of practically all facilities in Morrow county for necessary production, industrial and agricultural.

The president said he would like to know whether the Mt. Gilead plan is ever followed out, asserting that many communities develop plans that are not always carried through.

Mr. Roosevelt said there was always somebody in opposition to programs like "Production Now" but added that it didn't always come from bankers.

Invaders Hold Western Half Of Indies Isle

Defenders Destroy Everything of Value Before Abandoning Capital to Foe; Bandoeng Area Fortified for Climactic Last-Ditch Fight.

BULLETIN

LONDON—(AP)—Dutch forces, in a terrific frontal attack, drove the Japanese from a section of the plains of Bandoeng which the invaders occupied yesterday, Reuters reported from Bandoeng today.

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The United States is sending a mission to India, the state department announced today, to explore the possibilities of American help in creating a great supply base there for the United Nations.

(By United Press)

BANDOENG, Java—The Japanese captured Batavia, capital of the Dutch East Indies, today and an out-numbered, weary United Nations army fell back into the hills of central Java for a "MacArthur stand" around this mountain stronghold.

Batavia, abandoned by the Dutch after destruction of everything of use to the invaders, was the third Allied capital—Manila and Singapore were the others—to fall to the Japanese in less than three months of war in the Far East.

Tonight, after another day of steady enemy aerial attack, Japanese soldiers had cut across middle Java from north to south, occupied Jokjakarta and stood within sight of the Indian ocean.

The invasion armies "as a result of great superiority and mastery of the air" had thus over-run western Java, cut off the eastern half of the island including Soerabaja naval base and forced the defenders to make their stand in the rugged central region where volcanic peaks rise thousands of feet over the jungle.

Already the rumble of heavy artillery could be heard in the streets of Bandoeng and a major battle appeared to be developing to the north, where the enemy previously had advanced to within perhaps 25 or 30 miles of this military headquarters and temporary capital.

FEARFUL: Japs Order Tools, Weapons Taken From Filipinos

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—Apparently fearful of native uprisings against them, the Japanese have ordered all Filipinos in occupied areas to surrender every weapon and tool which might conceivably be employed as a weapon, the war department reported today.

A copy of the Japanese order, which extended even to the bolo knife, the Filipino's tool of all work, has reached Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters, the department's communique said.

"This order is interpreted by Gen MacArthur as indicating that the invaders fear that the increasing resentment of the natives may develop into a popular uprising against the Japanese," the communique continued

Meanwhile, the communique said, the success of MacArthur's air sortie against Japanese troop ships in Subic bay on March 4 has dislocated enemy plans for resumption of their offensive in the Philippines.

The Japanese order directed all Filipinos under the invader's heel to surrender not only all guns but also knives of every description and function.

The war department said Japanese offensive activity in the

RECAPTURE: Reds Take Back Yukhnov; Moscow Bombed

(By Associated Press)

The Russian encirclement of the 16th German army about Staraya Russa was coupled today with a constriction of the Nazi-held Rzhev-Vyazma pocket on the central front through recapture of Yukhnov.

Yukhnov is a Ugra river town 120 miles southwest of Moscow and 50 miles southeast of Vyazma, skirted in Russian thrusts westward toward Smolensk. Soviet authorities said it had been heavily fortified and reinforced by German troops ferried east by plane.

Russians reported more than 300 Germans were killed along one mile of the sector after Red army detachments penetrated their lines despite heavy artillery fire, that the fleeing survivors abandoned their wounded and failed to destroy their munition dumps.

After nine weeks without an alarm, Moscow was raided again last night. Although Soviet anti-aircraft shells blazed spectacularly over the capital, some damage and casualties resulted from the bombing, which the Russian radio described as "at random."

Bad weather kept the British air force grounded for the second night in a row. The air ministry, however, said photographs taken in daylight by a daring aerial scout confirmed vast damage that raiders had reported inflicted Tuesday night on French factories in the Paris area producing war materials for Germany.

The photographs showed fires were still burning in the great Renault motor works and that the damage was "evenly distributed over the whole area," the ministry said.

Informed American industrialists estimated in New York that the French plants—operating 24 hours a day now instead of the former 10 to 45 hours a week—were producing for Germany at possibly three times the rate at which they had contributed to France's fighting forces.

JAPS CAPTURE BATAVIA; DUTCH IN LAST STAND

Invaders Hold Western Half of Java as Defenders Retreat To Hills.

The Dutch face a struggle of the utmost gravity but they have not given up and are frequently striking back with telling effect, believing that they can hold out in the hills until an Allied counter-drive on other far eastern fronts can be started.

Powerful defenses guard the roads leading to Bandoeng. Mountain artillery has been in place for weeks and tank barriers, anti-aircraft guns and fortified points are supplemented by barbed-wire obstacles and land mines in the path of the enemy.

This is the area where the Dutch had long-planned to make their last-ditch stand if necessary—and even if the test has come sooner than many expected—they are ready for the climactic battle. Their biggest arsenals are hidden in the mountains near Bandoeng and their finest equipment has been withdrawn to these defense lines.

But admittedly the Japanese have the great advantage of air control and the defense forces are weary after many hours of ruthless bombing attacks.

In more detailed reports from the fighting fronts, it was reported that the Japanese had been driven back on several sectors north of Bandoeng and in the eastern area around Soerabaja. But these counter-blows, it was acknowledged, were of a defensive nature and the main enemy forces were expanding their conquest with the possible exception of the mountain sector near Soebang on the road to Bandoeng.

The scored earth policy has been vigorously carried out by the Dutch on Java as it was on other East Indies islands that fell to the Japanese.

All major installations in Batavia were destroyed in line with the policy of the Dutch to leave nothing that would be useful to the invader.

"The situation is serious but not hopeless," it was stated officially.

Virtually all of western Java (presumably including the capital of Batavia) has been occupied by the Japanese.

Hope of immediate effective reinforcement was abandoned by the Netherlands forces and the Americans. Britons and Australians fighting beside them.

But they had determined to fight to the last, in strong points all over the island, and all combat leaders had orders to select and defend positions from which the fight might be continued as the heroic men of Gen. Douglas MacArthur have fought in the Batan peninsula.

". . . We must find our strength, as MacArthur did, in concentrating and in defending certain areas where nature gives us an opportunity to resist superior forces," Lieut. Gov. Hubertus Van Mook said in a stirring midnight address to the island people's council.

It was learned in reliable quarters that the Netherlands Indies news agency reported, that the Netherlands and Allied forces were still fighting in advance of the positions at which they had determined to make their final stand.

Indies Station Resumes Broadcast

LONDON —(INS)— The Netherlands Indies broadcasting station at Nirom (Radio Batavia) was off the air until 1:46 p. m. London time (8:45 a. m. EWT) today but came on at 2 p. m. with the following announcement:

"Owing to a technical defect we are obliged to close down for the moment. Should the damage be repaired, we will resume our broadcast, if not we will be back on the air at 1:15 p. m. London time tomorrow."

Evidently the damage was repaired, for 17 minutes later the station was heard in London concluding a news broadcast in English.

The announcer concluded:

"We shall be back on the air tomorrow with news . . . Thank you for listening and good luck from the Netherlands East Indies."

Britain Moves to Build Asia Defense

LONDON— (U.P.) —Britain in a new move to strengthen its Asiatic mainland defenses named Air Marshal Sir Richard Peirse air officer commander in chief in India today as the Japanese drove westward from the Sittan river on the Burma front.

Peirse recently relinquished his post as air officer commander in chief of the important bomber command of the Royal Air Force to take up a secret "special appointment."

He succeeds India Air Marshal Sir Patrick Playfair.

Thus Peirse will join the fighting forces in India immediately after the return of Gen. Sir Archibald Wavell, Britain's foremost soldier, to reassure the supreme command.

While Britain moved to strengthen its Asian mainland forces, the situation on the Burma front became increasingly grave.

The Japanese had captured Waw, key town 70 miles northeast of Rangoon and 15 miles from the Pegu junction of the Rangoon-Lashio railroad line to the Burma road.

They had rounded the corner of the gulf of Martaban and were driving direct through the knee-deep rice fields for Rangoon.

'Minister' Given Alms, Benefactor Gets Bad Check

If you are called upon to play Good Samaritan to a "minister" you had better be cautious, Mansfield police warned today.

H. R. Dodd, 183 Buckingham street, played host to the 65-year-old "minister" long enough to get a $6 "rubber" check in return.

Dodd told police that the "minister," 55, who calls himself Rev. C. L. Lee, had asked him to endorse a check on the First National Bank of Warren and that he had cashed the check at a market on South Adams street.

The Warren bank returned the check with a note stating that it was worthless and Dodd had to reimburse the market.

Dodd told police that Lee had posed as a "minister up against hard luck" and that he had aided him.

After Dodd had seen that Lee was fed and given a place of lodging, he told police that Lee produced the check which he said had just arrived. He also showed Dodd a letter which was supposed to have accompanied the check.

Dodd said Lee appeared to be about 65, had grey hair and was about 5 feet, 10 inches tall. He said the man wore a blue suit and a brown hat and coat.

Earlier estimates of 30 dead were revised downward when a final checkup showed several persons believed to have been in the building when the explosion occurred were elsewhere, and scattered remains which at first appeared to have been from several bodies were found to belong to bodies previously removed.

NORWALK, O. —(INS)— Told a story by defense witnesses of numerous brutalities, a jury in the murder trial of Mrs. Emma Roethlisberger, charged with slaying her husband, Louis Roethlisberger, was expected to begin deliberations Monday, it was indicated today.

One witness related seeing Roethlisberger knock his wife down with a blow behind the ear and kick her; on another occasion, he testified, the defendant was kicked in the face.

The defendant, a resident of Willard, told the court she had fought with her husband before he was fatally stabbed. She said her mind was a blank after her husband struck her on the head with a shoe during the quarrel.

which has not yet been designated.

The books will be issued for every member of a family and are not transferable. Stamps must not be removed from them except in the presence of the storekeeper, clerk or person making the delivery. Failure to follow this rule voids the stamps removed, instructions point out. Each person will be permitted eight ounces of sugar a week.

When the books are issued by teachers or volunteer registrars, the prospective purchaser will be asked how much sugar he has in his home. If the amount is more than the small supply permitted by the rationing board, stamps representing the excess supply will be removed from the book. In the case of a family with a supply of sugar, stamps will be torn from the books of all members of the family.

When the rationing books are issued, the owners must sign their names on them, show their age, address, height, color of eyes and hair.

When a person dies, his ration book must be turned back to the county ration board and not given to a relative or a friend. If the holder of a book enters a hospital or other institution for a period of more than 10 days, he must turn his ration book over to the person in charge. When the owner leaves the institution, the book will be returned to him.

Parents will be held responsible for the safe-keeping of their children's books. All lost books must be reported immediately to the county ration board.

The number of books allocated to the county is based on estimates set up by superintendents and principals of city and county schools. Schools will cooperate with the county ration board in distributing the books, checking sugar supplies, and otherwise administering the rationing program.

The total number of cases of all types of communicable diseases was 2,072, and of this number 1,408 were measles. Others included whooping cough, 127; scarlet fever, 20; diphtheria, 11; and typhoid fever, 1.

Only two fatalities from communicable diseases were reported, one being a scarlet fever case and the other a whooping cough case.

During the year, 238 were admitted for medical service for tuberculosis while 318 were admitted to nursing service. Of the latter group, 84 were positive cases, 137 were suspects and 114 contacts to cases.

A total of 410 patients were referred to Dr. T. L. Bliss, of Akron, tuberculosis diagnostic clinic physician, who performed 431 examinations. Of the 272 new patients checked, 34 were found to have active cases. Of the 138 patients given a re-check as suspects, 23 were found to be tubercular.

Two detachments of the coming AEF in Northern Ireland . . . American troops in London . . . preparations for American "commandos" to join the British in raiding Europe . . . American "Fighting Tigers" on the Burma road—airmen who have made the Japanese pay the unprecedented price of 20 to 1 for riding the Burma skies. . . .

Ninety days of war . . .

The fox holes of Batan . . . the MacArthurs, putting planes into the air out of nowhere, smashing Japanese transports, adding new thousands to the casualties already inflicted . . . American flying fortresses—just a handful as yet—blasting the Japanese at Bali, flying until their planes were almost ready to fall apart and then roaring off for another start from new bases.

Ninety days of war . . .

American naval squadrons raiding the Marshalls and the Gilberts . . . U. S. submarines and planes blasting at Japanese ships, attempting to even the score for Pearl Harbor. Running the score of Japanese losses up to 80 warships, merchants ships, supply ships, transports sunk, including a battleship, an aircraft carrier, three cruisers, nine destroyers, 10 submarines . . . another 12 ships probably sunk—forty more including two battleships damaged.

Ninety days of war . . .

Eleven American army and navy ships, one of them a battleship . . . at least 25 American flag merchant ships sunk or otherwise lost in the Atlantic and Pacific . . . a Nazi submarine campaign that has taken at least 24 ships, including 13 tankers, off the Atlantic coast . . . twelve ships lost in the Caribbean . . . at least 114 ships attacked west of 30 degrees latitude in the Atlantic since Jan. 1.

Ninety days of war . . .

Critical battles approaching in India and Australia, possibly in Siberia and Alaska.

Today Pearl Harbor and the great Hawaiian bastion bristle with defenses. The air losses of Dec. 7 have been more than made up.

But army and navy commanders warn that "it can happen again"—that Japan could still make attacks on the key Pacific fortress though not, it seemed certain, with the devastating surprise effects of the first treacherous assault.

Nor was there assurance that Japan would not launch a spring offensive against Alaska and particularly the Aleutian island bases which, with Vladivostok, point a brace of pistols at the Japanese homeland. Little information has penetrated through the wall of military secrecy on the energetic measures known to be underway to prepare Alaska against attack and as a base for offensive action.

Ninety days of war. . . .

Coroner Says Woman Found In Snowdrift Died Naturally.

MARIETTA—(U.P.)—A coroner's report showed today that Mrs. Florence Dailey Williams, 27, of New Philadelphia, whose body was found in a snow bank Wednesday, died of natural causes. She had been suffering from a heart ailment.

Relatives made arrangements to care for her daughter, Patricia Jean, who had been cared for by Marietta juvenile authorities for two days.

What do I do?

"Curbs" are fire enemies!! give 'em a wide berth!

Whenever you park your car or turn into a driveway remember this: Hitting the average curb at 20 miles an hour is just as hard on a tire as dropping your car from a 3-story building and having it land on all four wheels. No tire made can take such punishment and last its normal life. If you do hit a curb or other obstruction have the tire examined immediately—it can usually be repaired if given prompt attention.

MANSFIELDERS RECEIVE NEW PLEA FOR BOOKS

Library Prepares For Last City-Wide Collection For Armed Forces.

Mansfield today was asked to get its book donations ready for the last city-wide collections to be made in connection with the national Victory book campaign waged to provide reading matter for the country's armed forces.

The final pick-up has been scheduled for Saturday, March 14, by the Mansfield Boy Scouts but it will not be in the form of a house-to-house canvass. The scouts will only call at homes which have notified either Scout headquarters or the Mansfield Public library that donations will be available.

Potential donors are asked to place their calls early, according to Miss Lois MacKellar, Mansfield librarian and county chairman, so that adequate collection service can be arranged. Although the main campaign will close within the next two weeks the library will continue to accept gift books or cash to purchase new titles for the men in service, the chairman said.

So far the library has shipped 2,200 books to defense areas out of the collection of close to 7,000 books donated by Mansfield and Richland county residents in the past few months.

The greatest shipment went to Camp Craft in South Carolina and approximately 900 books were sent to the United Service Organization club at Ravenna, O., where a new ordnance plant is located. About 750 books that will appeal to women and children will be sent, upon directions, to defense areas where library service is inadequate.

Hundreds of books were received from Plymouth, Bellville, Ontario and Shiloh collection points recently and also the donation of 100 books collected at the Colony Bowling Alley under the leadership of the Women's Bowling league.

They're Hoping This'll Help Stop Japs

Barbed wire, by the mile, is strung along the coastline at Darwin, Australia, which already has been bombed by Japanese planes in what is believed to be a preliminary for an invasion of the Australian continent itself. Australian newspapers have begun a campaign for an American, preferably General Douglas MacArthur, to be appointed commander-in-chief of United Nations forces in southwest Pacific.

THEATERS

Comedy Bombshell.

"Hellzapoppin'," Olson and Johnson's bombshell of comedy, music and dancing, will open its bag of tricks at the Ohio theater tomorrow. In the stage show that played all over the theater as well as on the platform nobody could predict what was going to happen and some of this suspense has been injected into the picture. The stars are supported by some top-flight screen comedians including Mischa Auer, Patsy Kelly and Hugh Herbert. Spectacular production numbers will feature such songs as "Heaven For Two" and "You Were There."

* * *

Cavalry Drama.

Wallace Beery's new starring picture, "The Bugle Sounds," opening Saturday at the Madison combines a story of factual army life with fictional adventure as Beery portrays a hard-boiled cavalry sergeant with a heart of gold. Filmed in co-operation with the U. S. army the picture deals with the mechanization of the cavalry and the trouble it causes Beery when he refuses to accept things as they come. Marjorie Main who appeared opposite Beery in several pictures is in the cast also Lewis Stone and George Bancroft. Bert Lahr and Alvino Ray's band are featured in "Sing Your Worries Away," the co-attraction.

Two action pictures topped by "Man From Headquarters," starring Frank Albertson and Joan Woodbury are showing at the Ritz. The Range Busters are featured in the second attraction, "Fugitive Valley."

Romantic Musical.

Alice Faye emerges as an ultra-smart and fashionably gowned society queen in "That Night in Rio," technicolor production starring Don Ameche and Carmen Miranda at the Park theater Saturday. Ameche plays a dual role that of an American entertainer in Rio and also that of a Brazilian count whom he impersonates in his stage impressions. Miss Faye appears as the Count's wife and Miss Miranda plays the role of the entertainer's partner. John Boles in "Road to Happiness," is the second attraction.

* * *

Sympathetic Role.

Playing one of the few sympathetic roles in which he has appeared on the screen Jack LaRue takes the part of a southerner just released from prison in "Gentleman From Dixie," showing at the Majestic. His attempts to make a come-back to society motivate the plot and the cast includes Marian Marsh and Herbert Rawlinson. Tim Holt's picture, "Come On Danger," is the co-feature.

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, FRIDAY, MARCH 6, 1942.

This is the week that the "first robin" is being seen all over town.

The shortage revealed in that old favorite, "Yes, we have no bananas today" can soon be extended almost indefinitely.

Secretary Morgenthau put it in a way that is worth remembering: "War is never cheap . . . but it is a million times cheaper to win than to lose."

February Strikes Helped Axis

AID TO THE AXIS POWERS, intentional or unintentional, is being given by every person who "strikes" in an industry that either directly or indirectly involves production or distribution of war materials, or any of the things needed to bring about successful termination of war in the quickest possible time.

It is disheartening to learn of the considerable increase of strikes in war industries last month. The number of strikes, rose from 43 in January to 76 in February, and the number of strikers from 15,512 to nearly 71,000. The lost man-hours soared from less than 67,000 in January to more than 2,000,000 in the shortest month.

This unhappy situation, which reveals utter lack of understanding of the actual danger now being faced by liberty-loving Americans, needs immediate correcting if there is to be the all-out war effort for which President Roosevelt and other national leaders are pleading.

There are ample means, both public and private, to settle labor disputes without resorting to strikes, and unless these can be made effective in preventing work stoppages in military production, at least until the war has been won, need for more drastic governmental action seems obvious.

Volunteers for Farm Work

THE "help one another" idea is being admirably expressed in the decision of members of the Richland County Fish and Game Protective association to volunteer personal services for farm work during the sowing and harvesting seasons.

It was not uncommon, in earlier times, for rural neighbors to get together for some special task such as threshing, butchering, building a home or barn, moving, and the like, without money payment for work.

Even urban residents, in "the good old days," sometimes pooled their work, as an exchange of courtesies, so that seasonal jobs would not rest too heavily on any one of them.

The so-called "complexities of modern times" has done away with much of this form of reciprocation, and neighborly helpfulness is now seldom evidenced except in instances of bereavement or misfortune.

City and county sportsmen who find opportunity to help with farm work during the rush seasons of planting and harvesting will not only be performing a worthwhile service but will probably benefit physically from the exercise they are thus privileged to have.

Shortage of farm labor, with the war need for increased agricultural production, makes this offer especially timely.

Litvinov Advises Two-Front Action

MAXIM LITVINOV, Soviet ambassador at Washington, calling for a "two-front war" against Hitler, maintains that the United Nations together "can deal Hitler a knock-out blow this summer by simultaneous offensive action on two fronts."

This would be mainly a Russian-British-American job. With the Russians pressing against the Nazis from the east and all the free forces that could be mustered for the big push pressing against them from the west, the Nazi army would be caught and squeezed as by a gigantic nut-cracker. The present army that has been fighting against relentless Russian pressure all winter might be tired out and the German people behind the lines would probably be frightened and discouraged.

It's something to think about, anyway. And no doubt Allied military leaders are doing some heavy thinking. If the war could be ended with such a big smash this year, it would save millions of lives and billions of dollars.

Placing America First

AT A MEETING of Italian Sons and Daughters of America, a speaker says: "The Italians are a great people who are guilty only of a bad government in the old country." With due allowance for occasional observable lapses, that is true. Italians, on the whole, have been good citizens and some have made valuable contributions to American life, and are strongly opposed to Fascism and Nazism.

"When the news came that Germany and Italy had declared war on America," says a prominent leader, "Italo-Americans in this country were struck to the heart. This is our adopted land, the land of our children, and by our eternal God, America comes first."

It is heart-warming to find so many newer citizens taking the same loyal attitude.

More About That 'Sans Origine'

HUNDREDS of Americans lately have been puzzled by getting messages from relatives or friends marked "Sans origine." Unless they know French, which is still an "international language," they take that for the name of the place from which the message was sent. It merely means "without origin."

The soldier and sailor boys may know where they are, but they're not allowed to tell. And such messages will probably be arriving as long as the war lasts. The secrecy is necessary for military reasons, and news in any form is welcome.

Nature has never seemed amenable to suggestions—so there's no need of intimating that this would be a good time for another earthquake to hit Japan.

Biographical note credited to a University of Wisconsin freshman: "Abraham Lincoln was born in a log cabin which he built with his own hands."

According to one scientist, a husband's grouchiness can be cured by simple surgery—but cutting remarks are excluded.

Now that there is to be a "rug ceiling" there'll be increasing belief that the world's upside down.

Japanese are usually reported "in swarms"—which is the proper formation for insects.

Young Tells of Jap Espionage

—By JAMES R. YOUNG

(Editor's Note—Following is another in a series of articles by James R. Young, for 13 years chief of the Tokyo bureau of International News Service, on Axis espionage on the west coast.)

(Written Expressly for International News Service.)

WHEN Japan meets her inevitable reverses in the Pacific, the United States, and particularly the Pacific coast areas, now declared military sections under control of Gen. John L. DeWitt, will be prepared for sabotage and treachery.

The Japanese, in any new attacks on our coast, are not in the future as likely to repeat a Pearl Harbor or create a Normandie condition or Fall River, Mass., warehouse fire situation. Removed from legal interpretations, the army today has the authority. If Japanese make new sub shellings as at Goleta, Calif., they will not calculate on victory or a return to their home base. Their assault will be a suicide attempt.

The removal of aliens removes a danger which has existed within the country.

* * *

VIGOROUS demands to establish strict curfew regulations, notwithstanding economic losses to persons involved, have been made consistently by Senator Guy M. Gillette of Iowa, Reps. Leland Ford, Harry B. Sheppard, Carter and Kramer of California, Rep. John M. Coffee of Tacoma, Wash., and Rep. Rankin of Mississippi.

On the day the thirteenth naval district headquarters in Seattle warned of unidentified flares at sea and blinker shore lights which might be connected with Japanese espionage, American commercial fishermen whom I contacted on an intense survey, took from their files copies of authenticated and voluminous reports to Washington of their evidence of Japanese plans to attack the coast.

Seattle has been the import and export center of Japanese smuggling of narcotics, war materials and machine tools.

Private reports in the treasury department include one sensational case involving a narcotic shipment on a boat when the brother of the emperor of Japan, Prince Chichibu, was used as an innocent front man in the deal. This and two other incidents appear in the records of the commissioner of narcotics, H. J. Anslinger.

* * *

THE JAPANESE used their own people, including certain second-generation youths, for 10 years to further Tokyo's policy of coining dividends from the famous Black Smoke racket, and to weaken and enslave the people of other countries already invaded or marked for invasion.

I worked many weeks on the case involving Prince Chichibu. His chief host, when he visited this country, has been caught in the recent FBI web. The main obstacle to halting Japanese dope, which had Kansas City as its chief outlet, once the goods cleared through Seattle, was an appeasement policy of certain elements in this country. But alert treasury men made their greatest haul when one million shots of morphine were found in the hands of four Seattle Japanese.

If in peace time the Japanese resort to narcotics trafficking, the smuggling of industrial diamonds, mercury, machine tools, faked export licensing papers and the use of disguised officials and teachers as priests, what then, I have observed, is the limit to organized sabotage agents in war time?

Rep. Martin Dies was correct in his charge that "unless the government adopts an alert attitude, there will occur on the West Coast a tragedy that will make Pearl Harbor sink in significance."

That agents of the 7,200 estimated Japanese spies did not turn in all prohibited goods has been shown by FBI seizures. The entire coast, now under the army, must be searched relentlessly. Every school, temple, hotel and farm under the Japanese flag, will be investigated and their occupants moved inland.

Looking Back

TWENTY YEARS AGO TODAY

Monday, March 6, 1922.

Gibson Robertson, 53, died of heart attack in his grocery store on Benton street.

Fortieth anniversary of admission of Curtis E. McBride into practice of law.

Edna Garver, Lexington avenue, was surprised by group of girl friends on her birthday anniversary.

Harry DeYarmon, Douglas avenue, was improving after serious illness.

Joint committee of city council and auto club was working on revision of Mansfield traffic code.

Birth reports: Daughter to Mr. and Mrs. Albert Twitchell, 150 West First street; daughter to Mr. and Mrs. Dwight P. Smith, 46 Summit court.

FIVE YEARS AGO TODAY

Saturday, March 6, 1937.

Ohio's senate and house committees estimated cost of caring for Richland county direct relief clients in 1937 would be $120,000.

Miss Marjorie Bolus, sophomore at Miami university, was honored at a dinner given by the Mortar board for her high scholastic grades.

L. A. Ott was elected area president of Boy Scouts in Johnny Appleseed area at annual scout conference.

Mr. and Mrs. William Jamison and Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Jamison and son, Billy, returned home after touring three southern states and spending two months in Florida.

Health And Diet

Health Questions Answered Here.

—By DR. CLENDENING

M. N.:—"I have chronic gall bladder trouble and would like to know if the following would be injurious. They are not on my diet list—bananas, seedless grapes, unfermented grape juice and pineapple juice?"

Answer: None of the foods you mention has any especial effect on the gall bladder—either in health or in inflammation.

Mrs. D. B.:—"Will you please settle an argument between my husband and me. He contends that carrots are good for the eyes. I say no food has any direct bearing on the eyes."

Answer: Carrots contain carotene which is the food from which Vitamin A is manufactured in the body. Vitamin A is the vitamin which affects certain structures in the retina of the eyes and prevents night blindness. Therefore I will reluctantly have to side with your husband in this controversy.

A. S.:—"Is olive oil good for inflammation of the gall bladder? Is Vitamin C good for the gall bladder?"

Answer: Olive oil depends for its reputation in the treatment of gall bladder disease on a peculiar property it has. When it is taken in large quantities, it forms into pellets which, passed by the bowels, looks like gall stones. Quacks often trade on this to claim a cure for gall stones. The olive oil, like all fats, has the property of causing the gall bladder to contract and empty itself. This is a form of drainage which may be beneficial.

Vitamin C has no effect on gall bladder disease.

TODAY IN HISTORY

On this day 1836, only six defenders survived the assault on old Fort Alamo in San Antonio, Texas. Besieged by a force of over 1,500 Mexicans under Santa Anna's leadership, the garrison of less than 150 Texans valiantly but vainly attempted to hold the fortress. "Remember the Alamo" became the war-cry of soldiery engaged in fighting the Mexicans for Texan independence.

Timely Editorial

They Ask No Favors.

Employment of young women as gasoline station attendants raises a new question of etiquette. Should a male motorist, upon driving up to the gasoline pump, politely doff his h.., then jump out and take the cover from the gasoline tank? Should he lift the hood and pull out the dirty oil indicator himself? If his tires need air, should he say, "Just lend me your gauge, please, and I'll check them"?

Well, it's every man as his own conscience dictates. If the little girl seems to be having difficulties, it will be a cold-hearted male who will refrain from jumping out to help her, especially if she is petite and blond. We have a hunch, though, that the gals would prefer that their presence be accepted as a matter of course—that they be treated courteously but with no special deference because of their sex. They're hired to do a job and they expect to do it.—Akron Beacon-Journal.

Difficult to Explain.

We wonder whether, during a war, it is not futile to tell a moron that crime does not pay.—Toledo Blade.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Jesse Jones' Control Over Loans Is Bottleneck of War Production

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

(The authors of the Washington Merry-Go-Round, believing that President Roosevelt should be consistent with his opposition to "The Nine Old Men" serving on the Supreme Court in 1937, have written a series on "The Four Old Men" in the Roosevelt cabinet who are engaged in vital war jobs—Secretaries Hull, Stimson, Knox and Jones—all aged around 70. Herewith is their appraisal of Secretary of Commerce Jones.)

WASHINGTON—If Jesse Jones had not insisted on the dual role of secretary of commerce and federal loan administrator, he would not be such a brake on our war effort.

Originally it never was intended that one man should hold these two all-important jobs. Roosevelt didn't intend it, and congress didn't intend it. In fact, it was specifically required by law that one man could not hold both offices.

However, when the president first offered Jesse the commerce department, FDR consented in a weak moment to let him remain as federal loan administrator—if Jesse could get permission from congress. The president thought, of course, that congress never would give it.

But he forgot that Jesse Jones, as loan administrator, had passed out juicy financial tidbits to the constituents of almost everyone on Capitol Hill. Congressmen remembered that. Also they figured that some day they might want more. So Jesse actually got a special resolution through congress permitting him to hold both jobs.

It was a great day for the ego of one man, but a tragedy for the 129,999,999 other citizens of the U. S. A.

* * *

Banker Jones.

FEW PEOPLE realize how important loans are to the American war machine—and even less do they know what a throttlehold the man who controls those loans has upon war production. Reason is that most of the companies manufacturing war supplies have to receive loans from the federal treasury. Even such giant companies as Curtis, Packard, and General Motors, have received war loans from the government.

Therefore, the speed of granting those loans, and the decision as to who gets them not only means defeat or victory, but vitally affects the future economy of the United States.

That is why Jesse Jones today, as federal loan administrator, is more powerful than the chief of staff, the commander of the fleet, the War Production Board, the secretaries of war or navy—in fact everyone in Washington save the president of the United States.

* * *

How Jesse Works.

HERE, for instance, is a concrete illustration of how it works. The Marine Electric corporation of Portland, Ore., is making extremely important war instruments. In fact, it is the only factory on the west coast which can make them. It has a payroll of around 1,000 men and an excellent reputation, but was up against the fact that the navy had not inspected a lot of instruments and therefore had not paid for them.

So, a short time ago, the company urgently needed a defense loan, and was in a position where it would have to close down if it got no money to meet its payroll. All it needed was $80,000. But to get this through Jesse Jones' RFC ordinarily requires about two months.

In this case, however, the War Production Board went over the head of Jesse Jones, telephoned direct to Portland, asked William Kennedy, manager of the Portland office, to forward the papers immediately, and after a lot of bulldozing in Washington, finally got the loan.

Subsequently, however, the WPB finance division was warned not to do anything like that again.

"We had to keep our men here until 11 p. m.," RFC officials complained.

And as a result of the loan, Jesse Jones, loan administrator, has a mortgage on the life insurance of the Marine Electric corporation's executive and a provision that his plant can't spend more than $1,000 without RFC consent.

Boss Bottleneck.

CHIEF TROUBLE with Jesse Jones is that he has spent most of his 68 years as a banker and this is a time when the nation needs red-tape-cutters. Yet you can't teach an old dog new tricks. And today, with the war going worse and worse, and production more and more necessary, Jesse is still keeping his eye glued to the balance sheet. Sometimes he almost seems more interested in saving a few pennies than in saving the nation.

Last summer, for instance, when American ships were rushing rubber from the Dutch East Indies, the navy and maritime commission wanted to unload the rubber at San Francisco, instead of taking it all the way through Panama to New York. This meant a slightly more expensive rail haul over the Rockies, but also it meant about a month saved in rushing vessels back to Singapore for another load of rubber.

But Jesse Jones wouldn't pay the extra rail charge from San Francisco to New York. He insisted that the ships go all the way through the canal. And since he made the loan to buy the rubber, Jesse was boss. He was both boss and bottleneck. And that one little saving of about six cents a pound on rubber will cost the American people thousands of tires one year hence.

Again, Jesse Jones refused to pay Mexico more than $100 a flask for mercury. Japan was paying as high as $230 a flask, but Jesse wouldn't budge a cent higher.

It happens that mercury, not only is essential to shells and explosives, but also is "poor man's gold" in Mexico, being mined by Indians on small farms. When the price is high they work, when it is low they do something else.

Result was that Jap agents smuggled a lot of mercury right out from under Jesse's nose. Moreover, the Japs bought directly from the Indian, while Jesse, a banker to the end, insisted on buying through the big banks of Mexico City, which took a commission from the natives. So the natives preferred to sell directly to the Japs and keep the commission for themselves.

And that is one reason why we are already running low on mercury.

Jesse employed somewhat the same tactics with Brazil in regard to wild rubber from the Amazon jungles. The natives will go out and get the rubber if the price is high enough, otherwise they avoid the snakes and mosquitoes, and stay at home. But up until very recently, Jesse was willing to pay only 20 cents a pound for rubber, while the Germans were paying 30 cents.

So the Brazilians have not gone out into the jungles, and Jesse has had the satisfaction of doing business on a sound banker-like basis.

Watching Trends

—By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON—In this sea of civilian defense unpreparedness called the national capital, there is one little "island" where the inhabitants have done their job so well that the effort is worth reporting.

It is the National Geographic Society, national headquarters of which fill the five-story building at Sixteenth and M, a few blocks north of the White House.

When the call came for organization of civilian defense, Dr. Gilbert Grosvenor, president of the society, decided co-operation in the district and area civilian defense programs wasn't exactly complete. He set some of his bright young men to survey the building and work out an air raid protection service.

* * *

THE result is just about as near perfect protection from death from the sky as any five-story building could summon up. Probably only that million-to-one shot, a head-on hit from a demolition bomb could cause more than a scratch to any of the society's 226 employes and officers of more than quickly reparable damage to the bulding or its valuable archives.

One designated employe and his assistant warning wardens are constantly on the alert for an air raid warning. One of these pushes a button and three blasts sound on seven automobile horns located throughout the building. Within two and a half mintues (the time I was checking) the 226 employes and officials of the society are assembled in the basement cafeteria, all valuable records, manuscripts, and photos have been trundled into a bombproof, fireproof vault, and the society's auxiliary police, firemen, airplane spotters, first aid nurses, and so on are at their stations.

The society's quarter of a million unpublished photographs and originals of 38,000 published pictures are locked in a fireproof vault.

SANDBAGS are going up against the swinging doors that lead to the many-windowed kitchen. Monk's cloth is being fastened securely over glass panels in other doors. Out of the back windows that formerly opened on an alley, one now sees a 16-inch brick wall that reaches well above the windows and protects against bomb fragments. In a specially built room nearby are all conceivable supplies for use in blackouts, firefighting and clearing rubble. There is even radio equipment.

In case the water supply is disrupted, there is a 500-gallon emergency tank.

The way employes may clear their desks is interesting. On the desk of each is fastened a canvas bag. The individual merely sweeps the valuables into the bag and drops them into galvanized cans as they leave the rooms. Other employes wheel the cans into the vault.

"We shall fight in the fields" . . . Churchill.

"Now we are engaged in another great war . . . Agriculture must feed 10 million more people than in 1941, according to Secretary of Agriculture Claude R. Wickard. Because the industry has lost 750,000 persons since 1939, the individual burden to be assumed will be very large. I reflect the sentiment of a great many farm people when I say that the task will be undertaken cheerfully. On my own responsibility, I predict it will be done well." . . . Kirk Fox in Successful Farming.

* * *

"To realize that we can lose this war—this war that we have just got to win if life is to be worth living—is to know that no price is too much to pay. If we each have half as much at the war's end as we have now, we may consider ourselves lucky—if we also win.

"The boys at the front can't hold back anything—it's their lives or the other fellows'. Neither must Washington—nor any one of us Americans at home. For that's the way it is!"—Boxed black type editorial in Farm Journal.

* * *

"Like most normal small boys, my seven-year-old son is enormously excited by the war, his usual reaction being that he'd like to "cut Hitler's head off, chop him up, and throw him down a well." But one evening at supper, a few days after the Axis declared war on America, I noticed that he wore a singularly forlorn expression. I asked him what the trouble was.

"'I wish,' he said, unhappily, 'that I was an old, old man so I'd die pretty soon and wouldn't have to live in a world with all those bad people.' That sort of remark from a child stops you in your tracks. It highlights a state of mind that has been all too prevalent . . . there has been too much despairing talk. . . .

"We are going to win this war, and we are going to save our priceless heritage of freedom, opportunity and hope. It is high time for all of us to put aside defeatism and nourish our children and our young people on the same kind of courage, optimism and faith that built America . . . Cynicism can be a nation's greatest enemy."—Ben Hibbs in Country Gentleman.

* * *

"What do they defend when they defend America, the hard-shouldered young men of our land, whose khaki suits are weathered by wind and sun and rain?

"To the country lad, America is a farm of rich soil and a village where bells call field hands home for dinner. He is fighting for all such villages. He is fighting for things simple and dear to him; for the privilege of sitting on an upturned nail keg in the village store and arguing politics with his sunbrowned neighbors, for the right to live out his life quietly among kind, brief-spoken people.

"He is holding inviolate the memories of his boyhood—soft earth beneath his bare feet as he followed his father's plow . . . a hill he loved in spring, the bright quilt on his homemade bed, the worn steps before his house, and the silence of many dawns when he awoke to the hard scratch of a squirrel's claw on broken bark."—Editorial by Hazel Parker in Good Housekeeping.

* * *

"America, the Beautiful—God shed his grace on thee, And crown thy good with brotherhood, from sea to shining sea."

Amen.

An M. P. Learns His Trade

Lieut. A. R. Flores, national Judo champion in 1935, shows a future M. P. the proper defense against bayonets at the Military Police school, Arlington, Va. This is the bare hand defense. The bayonet lunge (top) is met by sidestepping and (bottom) firmly grabbing the rifle, which is twisted, thus throwing the attacker off balance.

MANSFIELDERS CALLED UPON TO PLACE RELICS IN HOBBY SHOW

As the first step in plans for the 1942 Hobby show sponsored by the Buckeye Hobby club, Donald Cram, chairman, today issued a call to Mansfielders to lend historical objects in their homes for museum displays.

The show, which will open in the Y. M. C. A. building on May 5 and close May 10, this year will be built around a series of displays to which all hobbyists will contribute.

In the past, the show comprised a series of individual displays.

Included in the displays now planned are a Victorian bedroom, a Victorian living room, a miniature zoo, a desert scene, a transportation display showing various means of travel, a collection of objects relating to the presidents of the United States, an historical project with pieces from famous forts, wars and persons of baseball fame, a collection of objects from foreign countries and another collection of relics.

Ready for the relics collection is a lock of hair from the head of Houdini, the late famous escape artist.

Especially needed to complete the displays are articles pertaining to foreign countries, early America and early Mansfield.

True Love Encounters Tire Trouble

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

Perhaps it's just as well we are confronted with tire rationing. In no other way would I have discovered that my fiance is a sweet young idiot. I have a car, fortunately equipped with new tires and a spare. As my business depends on merchandise delivery, my car is used for that purpose.

B. H. (Before Hitler) I used to take my girl for long drives on Sunday. Naturally, I can't wear out my tires indulging in these jaunts at present. When we go to a movie or to pay a call, we go by bus or street-car. She does nothing but berate me for being an old miser. We've been engaged for two years, but I wanted to have a little more saved before we married. Now I'm beginning to think I haven't picked the right girl. What are your reactions? BEWILDERED.

If the girl has got all she's entitled to in the way of good horse sense, she should be able to grasp the import of the tire famine without throwing tantrums and making any more trouble than you have on your hands at present.

Many men in your position may have to give up their businesses because of tire shortage. If the girl can't realize this, it shows an unreasonableness which it would be difficult to cope with in a wife.

* * *

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I've been married twenty years and have two children, one married and one at home.

My husband was a good husband and father until two years ago when he met a woman of 30 who has broken him financially and spiritually. She could get his eye teeth.

We've already separated twice over her. She comes to our town once a month and my husband rents a room for her and pays all her bills. When I find out about it, he cries and makes more promises. Since he's known her, he also has taken to drinking. He still insists he loves me. What am I to do? MARY.

When men get to the crying stage, beg their wives not to leave them and make promises which they're too weak to keep, they are in a rather pitiful state mentally. The history of such cases is that when the vamp has got his "eye teeth" and about everything else, back to the wife goes the husband, full of repentance, looking for sympathy, even support.

Confer with your children. Ask them how they will feel about caring for their father in the last phase, and if they feel he has forfeited the right to be given a home when he needs one. Don't you think it would be well for you to look about for a job and have something to fall back on, instead of promises of reform? Jobs are easier to get now than they will be later on.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

"Stephen Redfield!" I exclaimed in surprise, but when the actor's voice, explaining his errand came to my ears, I told myself that I might have expected it.

"Mrs. Graham?" he said. "It has just occurred to me that you might not object to an escort on your journey this afternoon; you know, to see the old man of whom you spoke. I shall be at leisure all the afternoon, and would love to go with you if you would care to have me."

I had had time to pump up my alibi, and now tried to make my voice convincing.

"Oh, I am so sorry," I said, "but I have had to change my plans. There is something my father wishes me to do for him at once, right here in Manhattan. I may not even leave the hotel; in any event, I shall not be able to go on that journey."

Madge's Alibi.

"When do you think you will be able to make the trip?" he asked. "It is most important to me, you know."

I longed to wither him with a haughty "That is of no consequence to me," but I remembered that my father wished him kept in good humor, so I said sweetly:

"Yes, I know, and I shall make the very first opportunity to go. If you happen to be at leisure then, I shall be most happy to have you accompany me."

"I shall make it my business to be at leisure," he answered with emphasis. "There is nothing I wish more than to accompany you."

Keeps Under Control.

His tone was significant, and I had a feral wish that I could reach his face and smash from it the smug smile which I knew it wore. But I was able to make my voice fairly saccharine as I answered him.

"I shall be sure to notify you when I go," I told him. "And now I really must say good-bye. My father is waiting for me."

"Good-bye," he said.

I hung up the receiver and turned to catch a speculative amusement in the eyes of the manager. If he had spoken, he could not have more clearly expressed the conviction that I was carrying on some sort of affair with Stephen Redfield, and that I ought to be ashamed of myself.

I was furious enough to scream out in anger at him, but I managed to keep my face blank, and when my father spoke with incisive emphasis, I knew that he also had seen Milner's expression and was leaping to the rescue of my reputation.

"What did Stephen want?" he asked. "To go with us on this trip?"

"Yes," I answered, playing up to him.

"I thought as much. But it simply would have been impossible to have him go along. You handled him just right. We'll think up something which will make him think later that he's taking the postponed trip you promised him. He's a nuisance, but I have a reason for humoring him for a few days, at least."

I stole a glance at Mr. Milner and was relieved to see that the amused censure in his eyes had been replaced by a matter-of-fact acceptance of the situation. I had time only for a significant, knowing glance at my father, before the telephone rang again and my father, answering it, spoke quickly.

Way Is Clear.

"O'Hara? Yes. Yes. Good work, man! We'll be down directly. Please wait for us. Good-bye."

He did not wait for the man's reply, but turned to Mr. Milner.

"He has everything arranged. Now will you please do something for me, yourself?"

"Of course," the manager replied. "Just name it."

"I want you to go down now and summon a taxi for yourself in whatever manner you usually do it, by telephone or boy. Then I wish you to have him drive you around to the entrance of the Shoreham building. Wait there in the taxi for us to come out of that entrance."

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

LOOK FOR THE BEST WAY

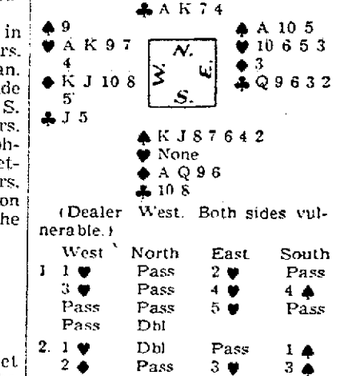
There are several degrees of laziness, when it comes to playing a hand. One player begins to put cards on tricks without doing any planning at all. Another begins to play as soon as he figures out any way which probably will make his contract. But the thorough planner exhausts first his study of all the alternative ways he can think about, then selects the one which he decides is best. His reward in the long run is not only a larger percentage of successful contracts, but a larger number of extra tricks, too.



(Dealer West. Both sides vulnerable.)

| | West | North | East | South |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| 1 | 1 ♥ | Pass | 2 ♥ | Pass |
| | 3 ♥ | Pass | 4 ♥ | 4 ♠ |
| | Pass | Pass | 5 ♥ | Pass |
| | Pass | Dbl | | |
| 2. | 1 ♥ | Dbl | Pass | 1 ♠ |
| | 2 ♦ | Pass | 3 ♥ | 3 ♠ |
| | 4 ♥ | 4 ♠ | Dbl | Rdbl |

Somewhat different bidding occurred at other tables of the tournament where this deal was produced, but most Souths wound up in 6-Spades. Where West led his diamond A, there was not much to the play. South had several ways to make his contract. But some of the Wests disliked laying down that top card, as it might set up a winning secondary honor for the declarer and thus enable him to make an otherwise unmakable contract. In those cases the lead was the club 2.

In the case of one lazy declarer, after taking this with the club K in dummy, he decided to give up a diamond, ruff a diamond in dummy and throw two diamonds on the heart tops. So to the second trick he led the dummy's diamond 9 and West won returning a trump. Consequently that declarer made exactly his 6-Spades.

At another table, South saw a way to go after all 13 tricks, and used it. He took the club opener with the A, so as to leave the K and Q in dummy as entries. Then he dropped trumps in three rounds, led the club 9 to the Q, cashed two top hearts for two diamond discards, ruffed the heart 2, went to dummy again with the club J to K, dropped the heart 10 with the J, discarding his third diamond and the heart 8 accounted for the fourth one. Two trumps were left for the last two tricks, so that an extra trick was scored, the diamond A being shut out altogether.

Tomorrow's Problem.

(Dealer: West, East-West vulnerable.)

If West and East are players who, not interrupted, would bid this deal merely 1-Heart, 2-Hearts, 3-Hearts, 4-Heatrs, at what point should North or South cut in with a bid which would influence the ultimate result?

HOROSCOPE

For Saturday, March 7.

According to the lunar transits this should be a most propitious day for attaining lofty objectives, with promotion, favors, honors and preferment from employers, superiors and those in high places. But this aim should be pursued by open and above board tactics rather than by indulging a proclivity to be clever, crafty or resorting to expediency while overlooking the sound element of principle.

If It Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for favors, preferment, promotion and honors, with many tokens of appreciation from employers, superiors and those in high standing; but by strict regard for integrity and honor and not indulging a proclivity to be sharp, cunning and expedient. With high principle, and purpose there should be much accomplished, in both social and business relations. Be careful with writings and alert to sharp practice.

A child born on this day should have much ambition to attain the good graces of those in high places, and will be eminently successful if it will refrain from unethical and too clever methods or trickiness.

HE HANDS OUT CANDY TO KIDS

FLINT, Mich. — (U.P.) — There is little wonder why John J. McKeighan is one of Flint's most popular druggists. In the past 25 years he has given away 500,000 pieces of penny candy which represents about $3,500 in cold cash.

It started a quarter of a century ago when a dirty faced urchin pressed his nose against the candy show case and said, "I'll take one of those." When asked for the penny the youngster replied "I haven't got one."

The druggist asked the boy not to tell any of his friends, but within 30 minutes the store was filled with 50 youngsters and McKeighan passed the box. He has been doing it every Saturday since.

GEN. JOHNSON: Reverses Spur Plans for Air Armadas

By GEN. HUGH S. JOHNSON

WASHINGTON — There are two principles that work in both war and peace that have been proved so often in human experience all over the world, so often and with so few even apparent failures, that hardly anybody contests them in theory.

Gen. Johnson.

One is that civilian morale—the popular sense of justice and of government concern for the general welfare—is necessary to national happiness in peace and absolutely an essential as the military morale of soldiers in war.

The other principle is one of taxation and revenue. It is called the law of diminishing returns. It is that rates of taxation can be so high as to discourage our business and other incentives to create wealth.

Tax rates above this limit—no matter how high they go—will result in lower rather than greater, revenue to the taxing source, and the decline in revenue will go relatively faster and farther than the increase in rates of taxation.

Our war administration seems never to have heard of either principle. At least its actions and proposals do not indicate that it has.

The office of price administrator is also the office of civilian supply. Its duties are not only to prevent undue price boosts, but also to insure at least a minimum of supplies to the civil population.

It has acted boldly and courageously to control a few prices although in spite of its efforts, the cost of living has gone steadily upward. But if it has done one single thing otherwise to conserve civilian supply, I am not aware of what it was and when it happened.

On the contrary, it has moved ruthlessly, without warning, and with no very convincing show of necessity, to ruin many a small business and to cut off, completely or partially, many sources of civilian necessities.

It has done little or nothing to reclaim and conserve alternative sources of supply.

It has simply moved in the easiest and most arbitrary way to take what we have for allied and American military uses on Harry Hopkins' slogan of "give 'em hell" or Mr. William Batt's "root, hog, or die."

Another great example which displays indifference to both well-established principles for war and peace is the treasury's astonishing tax proposal. Who knows what proportion of the war cost should be borrowed?

Nobody, and, anyway, that is not the real question. The real question is:

"What proportion of a cow's food can you take away and still get milk?"

Mr. Morgenthau wants to double this year's already high income tax rate for next year and still collect a proportion of the latter this year in addition.

I know plenty of people who haven't the money to pay this year's tax and some who, even if they sold their assets, couldn't pay both years.

I know men and corporations, not a few of them, who, if they worked much harder this year, risked more, did more business and made more money than in the last tax year, would be worse off than now at the end of the year.

Are they going to do that? It doesn't lie in human nature.

Yet all these calculations are based on a great rise in national income to 100 billions, consumers goods production of 65 billions nd hence 35 billions of "excess purchasing power." The treasury wants to syphon away that 35 billions to prevent counter-bidding at increased prices for the scant supply.

It is said to want to use every means to do this—joint returns for husband and wife, forced loans, installment deductions from payrolls, and freezing bank accounts. Yet all this is based on a theory—probably incorrect—and without regard to ability to pay or effect on national morale.

That bill certainly needs debate.

GERMAN AGENT FACES PRISON TERM AND FINE

Jury Convicts Viereck of Concealing Part of Activities.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — George Sylvester Viereck, convicted of concealing part of his activities as a registered German agent, today faced a prison sentence of two to six years and a maximum fine of $3,000.

A jury of 10 men and two women returned a verdict at 8:05 p. m., last night, finding him guilty of violating the foreign agent registration law by wilfully concealing the aid he gave to non-interventionist members of congress.

"Undoubtedly there will be an appeal," Defense Attorney Emil Morosini told reporters after government marshals had led away to jail the man government attorneys called "the world's greatest propagandist."

The trial, which featured the names of senators and house members with pre-war isolationist views, ended with a brief touch of drama.

"Your honor, may I say goodbye to my wife?" Viereck pleaded with Judge F. Dickinson Letts when a U. S. marshal and other court officers stood between him and Mrs. Viereck.

His tiny wife, clad in black, broke loose from two attendants and attempted to follow her husband. Judge Letts permitted the meeting in a quiet room in the courthouse basement. Led from the room handcuffed, Viereck smiling told her "bye, bye" and kissed her.

The jury's answer ended 12 days of testimony during which the government sought to show that Viereck was the master mind of a campaign to deluge the country with isolationist and anti-British literature.

Technically, he was charged with failing to divulge the full extent of his activities to the state department. His defense, which ended incompletely last Tuesday when Morosini charged Letts with "bias and prejudice," was that his activities were carried on in a personal capacity, not in the interests of the German Reich.

Up and Down THE STREET

A small brown dog, obviously suffering from too much "night life," interrupted the business procedure in the office of Principal Harry J. Dotson at John Simpson junior high school this morning. Appearing with the pupils in the morning he declined all offers of high learning and instead stretched out in the principal's office for a long needed rest. The highest degree of interest the youngsters could get from him was a slightly opened left eye.

At their weekly recreation meeting yesterday at the Salvation Army they were told that a representative of a national skating magazine was making arrangements to "shoot" pictures of the group during a skating session after learning of the skating project introduced for the blind school by Adjt. Paul Hoffman. The blind will also be entertained at luncheon by the Women of the Moose, March 19.

Mansfield is getting air-minded if the application for membership on the aviation committee of the Mansfield Chamber of Commerce may be taken as an indication. John G. Routzon, secretary-manager, said today that about 50 members had applied for membership on the committee which is usually limited to between 12 or 18 persons. The chamber secretary usually has trouble finding enough volunteers to serve on committees. Routzon said that the problem of determining who will serve on the committee had already been solved. All 50 applicants will be included on the committee and will work together for the betterment of the municipal airport.

The "treat" at the courthouse today was on Sheriff Frank E. Robinson, a bridegroom of less than a week. The sheriff ordered Jimmy Lemley, the courthouse confection stand proprietor, to serve soft drinks, candy, and cigars to county officials and employes and send the bill to him. Mrs. Robinson will arrive here tonight from Wooster where she has been taking care of some business details before coming here to establish her home in the residence quarters at the county jail.

ARMY MOVING RAPIDLY TO BUILD POWER

Plight of Forces In Far East Convinces Officers of Need For Planes.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — Spurred by reverses suffered by American and United Nations forces in the Far East, the war deaprtment today is moving rapidly to provide its fighting men on all fronts with the most powerful aerial armadas the world has ever known.

The plights of American forces fighting heroically in the Philippines and the southwest Pacific against a ruthless enemy who controls the skies and sea lanes apparently has won over virtually every high-ranking United States military official to the idea of more and more air power.

Recent developments in Washington have emphasized and given added impetus to the trend toward air power, which has been gathering momentum since the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor and subsequent events in the Far East.

In no uncertain terms, Secretary of War Stimson at his weekly press conference declared that "this is very largely an air war," and pointed out that in the war department reorganization ordered by President Roosevelt last week the air corps "will be given its proper place."

Scheduled to go into effect next Monday, the plan to "streamline" the war department calls for three separate and compact units designed to "win the war"—the air corps, ground forces and the service supply.

With plane production mounting rapidly in an effort to turn out the 60,000 aircraft requested for 1942 by Mr. Roosevelt, there is every indication in the nation's capital that adequate bomber and fighter support will be provided for American expeditionary forces when they take the offensive against the Axis.

Military men assert that only the heroic efforts of American and United Nations air units in co-operation with naval forces enabled the Dutch to keep the Japs from completing in short order their conquest of the East Indies.

American army airmen have played a vital role in stalling for weeks the Nipponese thrust toward the controlling points on the principal island of Java. Heedless of casualties, the Japs are attempting to complete their conquest before adequate reinforcements reach the defenders.

BROADWAY

—By Dorothy Kilgallen

Broadway Heroes.

AS THE daily history of the war is written in hasty newsprint and in the grim ink of blood and tears, stories of victory and defeat are brightened by tales of individual great valor. Names like MacArthur and Kelly become magnificent shining symbols of the courage of thousands of fighting men. These are great heroes.

Kilgallen

There are small heroes, too. There is a quieter kind of heroism that has nothing to do with war or headlines or glory or violent death. We know it much better than we know the deeds of the brave in battle; perhaps that is why we never think of it as heroism, why we seldom notice the quiet heroes. But there are such. Small towns have them, and big towns have them, and you probably know several.

Even Broadway, with its scheming and sham and selfishness and glossy trivia, has its heroes—more than I could mention here, many more than I will ever know about.

* * *

The tradition of the theater itself is based on courage and devotion. The drama is a labor of love and the very motto of the theater—the tired, time-worn, laughed-at slogan, "The Show Must Go On"—was born of bravery and the fighting spirit.

Names come to mind when you think of the little heroes, the quiet ones. You think of the kind people around Broadway, the ones whose helping hands extend to unfortunates such vital substances as room and board. Vincent Sardi, for instance. Sardi not only "hangs up" countless checks of unemployed actors, but lends them money recklessly. Only last night I dined with a very famous lady of the theater who said laughingly:

"You know, I remember when I owed Vincent Sardi $190 just for food. I used to eat there myself and I used to feed all my friends there."

The Algonquin's famous Frank Case has never been known to turn a starving writer or a struggling ingenue from his hotel. Leo Lindy may not play the horses, but he has a great tenderness of heart toward the horseplayer, and he takes care of them when Hialeah leaves them with nothing but a gnawing appetite.

Perhaps the most colorful of this group was the late Papa Strunsky, whose kindness and humanity as a Greenwich village landlord is extolled by scores of writers, artists and actors who will be everlastingly in his debt.

None of Papa Strunsky's tenants was ever evicted over the small issue of an unpaid rent bill. Ask Eugene O'Neill. Ask Lawrence Stallings and Maxwell Anderson.

You may not see the comparison between a restaurant keeper in peace time and a general in battle. But if you were alone in the big town and had not eaten for three days and were dog-tired from walking up flights of stairs to be told "no" and then suddenly you had a thick steak and fried potatoes and apple pie and coffee and a warm place to sit and a friendly smile you would get the idea. The little restaurant man would not need any medals to look like a hero.

DEATH CLAIMS L. M. HUGHES

Star Athlete In Early Sports In Mansfield Found Dead In Hotel Room.

Lawrence Melvin (Red) Hughes, 48, star Mansfield high school athlete in 1909-10-11, was found dead last night at 8:43 in his room at the Court hotel, North Main street.

A giant of a man, even in high school, Hughes was unusually graceful and fast for his size, and his speed and strength made him one of the greatest stars in Mansfield's early football and basketball history.

His feats on the gridiron and cage court have become tradition among old-time Mansfield fans, ranking along with those of Pete Henry, Mansfield All-American football star who followed him in high school by only two seasons. At the time of his death, Hughes weighed 335 pounds.

He was also an all-round athletic star at Ohio Wesleyan university.

Hughes, who had been living at the Court hotel recently, complained Tuesday of a bad cold, hotel clerk Charles Wolfe told police.

Wolfe said he had not seen Hughes since Tuesday, and that last night he used a pass key to enter Hughes' room to find out if he might be sick.

Dr. L. B. McCullough, Richland county coroner, said death was caused by a heart attack, and that Hughes had been dead since about 2 a. m. Thursday.

Hughes was born in Weller township Aug. 8, 1893, the son of the late George H. and Elsie M. Osbun Hughes. He was connected with the Hughes Supply company from the time it was founded by his father in 1910. He was a member of the First Methodist church and the Eagles lodge.

He is survived by his step-mother, Mrs. Florence Hughes, and three sisters, Josephine and Mary Olive Hughes of Mansfield, and Mrs. R. L. King of Entiat, Washington.

Funeral services will be held at the Finefrock funeral home Sunday at 3 p. m., conducted by Rev. Edwin Corwin, pastor of the First Methodist church. Burial will be in Franklin cemetery.

REAL ESTATE TAX PAYMENTS HEAD TOWARD $300,000 MARK

Real estate tax payments in Richland county approached the $300,000 mark, or half-way point, today with just two weeks left to pay the levies without penalty. The tax books close March 20.

With less than half the taxes collected for the first half of the year, County Treasurer Charles C. Payne said payments during the next two weeks must exceed those for the past five weeks or receipts will fall short of the half-year tax bill, which amounts to more than $600,000.

"Payments have been lagging for several days and it looks like there's going to be a jam in the office during the final week unless there's more activity pretty soon," Payne said.

The lagging collections may be due to the payment of heavy income taxes and the purchase of 1942 auto license plates this month, he added.

Mansfield schools have already drawn $30,000 against their share of the tax receipts to help the board of education meet current operating expenses.

County Auditor Norman L. Wolfe's balance sheet for March 1 showed the county received $5,233 and spent $29,742 in February, leaving a balance of $15,519. The county road and bridge fund had a balance of only $28.58 on March 1. County Engineer Howard Sword explained that the county's allocation of gas tax and auto license funds from the state is long overdue.

MAP CONTINUED FIGHT ON AAA

Farmers Promise Aid To War Effort In Resolution.

Richland county members of the Ohio Marketing Quota Protest association today had pledged themselves in a resolution to make "every effort to win this war on all fronts at home and abroad" but to continue their fight against the Triple A program's marketing and crop restrictions.

The protest association, organized last summer, has obtained a number of injunctions to restrain the AAA from collecting a 49-cent per bushel penalty on wheat marketed in excess of government quotas. Common Pleas Judge C. H. Huston granted a temporary injunction in Richland county several weeks ago.

450 EMPLOYES IDLE IN STRIKE AT ASHLAND

Call Walkout at A. L. Garber Printing Plant in Demand For Closed Shop.

ASHLAND—Employes of the A. L. Garber Printing company here continued on strike today demanding a closed shop. The strike, called yesterday, closed all production of the plant. It was authorized by unions of Printing Pressmen, Bookbinders and Lithographers and supported, according to William H. McHugh, chairman of the committee representing the strikers, by Typographers, Compositors and Truck Drivers.

According to McHugh the strike followed inability of union representatives to obtain a meeting with the company's board of directors although Dec. 15 was set to negotiate on the closed shop issue. When they attempted negotiations, he said, the company stated that they did not consider the union shop an essential part of the agreement.

Following a meeting of representatives of the three unions on Feb. 14 a moratorium was declared requesting a conference to complete their contracts with inclusion of a union shop agreement. Feb. 25 was set for a joint conference, McHugh said, at which time the company informed the unions that it wanted the contracts continued without the closed shop clause.

On Wednesday a meeting was supposed to be arranged between the union representatives and the board of directors by T. S. Myers, treasurer of the company, according to McHugh, but instead Myers met with them alone and informed that he had been delegated to give the same answer as before.

C. F. Crain, president of the company, said last night that the only issue was one of a closed shop and that a meeting of company officials and union representatives was scheduled today.

There are about 450 employed at the plant. The union claims that all but seven of these employes are members of the unions. McHugh, spokesman for the unions, is vice president of the International Printing Pressmen and Assistants' Union of North America.

SPORTS GROUP OFFERS TO HELP FARMERS PLANT, HARVEST CROPS

City sportsmen may be working side by side with Richland county farmers this spring and summer as a result of a resolution passed Wednesday night by the Richland county Fish and Game Protective association at a meeting conducted in the North Lake park pavilion.

In a resolution introduced by Fred Frankeberger and unanimously passed by the membership the group pointed out that there exists a serious shortage of farm labor because of both inductions into the armed forces of young men and their leaving to assume posts in munition centers.

Therefore, the resolution continued, the association "in recognition of the many favors extended to members by farmers resolves to extend such aid as is possible in the sowing and gathering of the 1942 crop."

Under plans being forwarded now, Gordon Ensminger, president, said this morning this aid will mean that each sportsman will either work in the fields himself, find a substitute or pay for the hiring of a worker.

The group also unanimously authorized the purchase of a $1,000 National Defense Savings bond with the use of club money.

Before the meeting adjourned the coon hunters' committee announced the date for the spring field trials for March 15 on the grounds of the Lucas Beagle club.

Ankenytown Couple Observe 50th Wedding Anniversary

ANKENYTOWN—At a family dinner on Sunday where they will be surrounded by, more than 30 of their direct descendants, Mr. and Mrs. Marion M. Darling, of Ankenytown, well known former residents of south-eastern Richland county, will celebrate their golden wedding anniversary.

Observance of the 50th anniversary will take place in the Grange hall at Ankenytown where Mr. and Mrs. Darling will receive their host of friends in an "open house."

Following their marriage of March 6, 1892, Marion Darling and his wife, Sylvia Sweitzer, both natives of southern Monroe township, made their home for 45 years on the old Darling homestead farm, settled by his grandfather, just south of the St. John's Lutheran church, south-west of Perrysville.

When their farm and home was requisitioned by the government to provide the Pleasant Hill dam lake area about five years ago, Mr. and Mrs. Darling moved to Ankenytown.

A son of Abraham and Rebecca (Manchester) Darling, the golden wedding groom is the last of a family of four brothers and one sister. He is a descendant of the Darlings who migrated from the east in early days to help settle Coshocton county, and then moved on to Richland county forming what in pioneer days was called the "Darling Settlement" east of the then thriving village of Newville.

Born on the farm where he lived for 45 years, Mr. Darling, now well past 82, enjoys good health and is still active in community, business and church affairs.

A daughter of Josiah and Mary Sweitzer, Monroe township pioneers, Mrs. Darling was born south of Lucas. She attended the old district school and later was employed as a teacher in several Monroe township schools.

In addition to rearing her family Mrs. Darling has also enjoyed a career of leadership in many community and church activities.

Mr. and Mrs. Darling are the parents of four children. They are Blake of Lakeville, bank cashier at Big Prairie; Carl, well known farmer near Fredericktown; Mrs. Bonnie Callahan, of Roseville; and Miss Eulelia Darling, of Ankenytown.

Howard C. Darling, prominent Monroe township farmer, is a son of Mr. Darling's by a former marriage.

Books For Children

(Available at Mansfield Public Library)

Two favorite characters from America's past are the subjects of new biographies for children on display at the Mansfield Public Library. One is loved for the stories he told and the other is admired as an author, a business man, an inventor and a statesman.

JOEL CHANDLER HARRIS; plantation story teller, by Alvin Harlow—Joel was the son of a poor widow but he found fun in his frugal life. He found work as an older boy and became a printer. His employer had a plantation and there he became interested in the life among happy Negro slaves in their quarters and the stories they told. When Mr. Harris left the plantation he became a newspaper man and created the character of "Uncle Remus" to tell these beloved Negro stories to the reading public and they have been cherished for many years.

POOR RICHARD, by James Daugherty — The story of Ben Franklin's youth has been told many times but never more vividly than in this book. The story of his life is continued to describe his genius for writing and inventing, his love of printing, of people, and of his country. His simple habits of industry and frugality combined with his genial personality made him a character worthy of the admiration he has won.

EVERYBODY READS THE Newspaper

"All I know is what I read in the newspapers," said Will Rogers and it's the phrase that will endear him forever to America; it struck a familiar chord in the hearts of millions.

Reads it excitedly, eagerly, with a thrill! That, incidently, is why newspaper advertising packs such a wallop! That's why it out-pulls every other kind. Everybody reads news—everybody wants news—and advertising is news, too!

A newspaper reader is alert, keyed-up to get the most out of advertising just because he is reading his newspaper. He is not playing bridge with the radio blaring in the background. He's not deep in a mystery serial, oblivious to everything but a bloody corpse. He's not wading wearily through a mass of broadsides and brochures looking for a personal letter from a pal in Marion, Indiana. He is avidly intent on the news in his newspaper advertising: What is it? Where can I buy it? How much does it cost?

He likes newspaper advertising and looks upon it as one of the many fine services his newspaper performs. HOW DIFFERENT from the radio listener who regards the honeyed voice of the announcer as a blatant intrusion.

America is primarily a newspaper market, populated by folks who buy almost everything they wear, eat and use through advertisements in the local newspaper. That is why aggressive merchants consistently use the . . .

"If," says Tyger Tutor Vern Hoffman, "any of these favored teams in the Sandusky district tournament, opening tonight, get the idea that they really have what it takes to be favored. and all they have to do is walk on the floor in their bright and shiny uniforms and collect the marbles, there'll be some upsets made.

"That goes for all four of the seeded quintets, Tiffin Columbian, Ashland, Mansfield and Fremont.

* * *

"Tiffin Junior already has defeated Columbian once this season and might do it again. And either team might defeat a careless Ashland club, if the A's allow themselves to get that way.

"And just in case Mansfield should get by Fremont and meet Ashland in the finals, the Tygers won't be able to take it easy against the A's, even though we defeated them twice in the regular season. They gave us a real scare on our home floor, and without their star, Prentuce.

* * *

"There's a lot of luck in a basketball game, and a lot more in tournament games, and no team can afford to let down and ride on its reputation. I think we've got a team that can win that tournament if we play the game of which we are capable."

* * *

Art Hilborn, president of the Mansfield Bowling association, and Al Vogel, manager of Colony alleys, have it all figured out for Mansfield to get next year's inter-city tournament during the voting at this year's Loram joust starting this week-end.

There are 161 regular teams and 159 booster quintets in the Loram tourney, a total of 329 teams. But Lorain, the host city, can't vote, and that takes away 49 teams, leaving 271 votes.

* * *

Hilborn and Vogel believe Mansfield is certain of 94 votes, Warren 86 and Sandusky 84, with seven votes doubtful, but like Hoffman, they are not over-confident

They're rushing letters to captains of doubtful teams, attempting to line up further support.

GOLF SONG

I'm a putt nut
With a jive drive,
And a nice slice
Or a crook hook,
And a fine line
When it's tee time
For my Sunday game.
Now the rough stuff
Gets my small ball,
And the sand man
With the slap trap
Spoils my lame brain
For my Sunday game.

(This could go on and on if we only knew what went on.)

Seven Out of Eight District Titleholders Win.

By JAMES EMERSON

COLUMBUS—(U.P.)—Seven of last year's district champions today survived initial tests in 1942 Ohio high school cage eliminations but a last-second basket knocked out Bryan, a defending Class A titleholder in the northwestern district.

* * *

Russ Loomis of Perrysburg tossed in a field goal in the final two seconds of action to give his team a 39 to 38 verdict over Bryan in the playoffs at Defiance.

* * *

Martins Ferry, the defending state champion, hurdled one of the toughest obstacles in its drive to another crown, by repulsing Tiltonsville, 40 to 37, in the initial contest of the eastern tourney on the Tiltons' own floor. Tiltonsville won 20 out of 21 games during the regular season and had defeated Ferry by three points on Feb. 17. Ferry won the first meeting between the two clubs in December by four points.

Big Bud Handskey of Pickerington from Fairfield county stole the individual spotlight last night when he flicked in 35 points as Pickerington swamped Raymond, 84 to 34, in the central district Class B tourney. Wiersville of New Knoxville collected 30 points as his club defeated Wapakoneta St. Joseph's 49 to 38.

Besides Martins Ferry, six other 1941 district winners came through last night. In Class A, Lakewood, the state runnerup last March, trimmed Cleveland Heights, 36 to 28, Newark, a favorite for the 1942 crown, crushed Columbus West, 41 to 17; Lima Central defeated Wapakoneta, 45 to 31, and Cincinnati Hughes walloped Cincinnati Automotive, 36 to 12.

Only two of last year's Class B state finalists saw action and both won handily. Berlin Township thumped Walnut Township 48 to 24, in the central district and Hanover Township turned back Batavia, 40 to 32, in the southwestern meet.

* * *

Middlepoint, Class B outfit from Van Wert county which had won 22 games in an unbeaten season, bowed to Bluffton in its first sectional playoff game, 42 to 34. New Concord made it 20 straight for the year by walloping Coshocton Sacred Heart, 62 to 17, in the eastern district.

* * *

Eaton became the first northeastern Class B entiant to advance to the district finals at Kent next week The Lorain county five smothered Oberlin, 64 to 22 to stamp itself as a strong contender for a berth in the state meet at Springfield.

Wakeman edged Fremont St. Joseph, 31 to 29, in the Class B meet at Fremont in the only overtime match on the tourney schedule so far this week.

Oldest Bowler Dissatisfied

Octogenarian Says He Will Improve His Game.

COLUMBUS—(AP)—The American Bowling Congress' oldest competitor, Jack Slater 87, of Dayton, is dissatisfied with his game Next year, he says, he's going to practice up and make the perfect 300 which has eluded him for 65 years.

The octogenarian took his 364 total, on games of 118, 130 and 116, philosophically with the comment that "you've got to bowl five or six nights a week to do any good." His game has become a once-a-week affair.

* * *

Slater recalled that he's had 11 or 12 scores of 299 in his bowling career but that "blankety" 10 pin never would drop.

"One night it must have wiggled and wabbled and walked all over the alley but it just wouldn't lay down" he said.

The white-haired, slender little man, who first tried his luck at the ABC in St. Louis in 1907, vows:

* * *

"Before I bowl at Buffalo next year I'm going to practice and get the 300."

* * *

Two changes among the leaders of the three-day-old tournament occurred overnight.

Steven Illes, jr., 35-year-old Dayton grocer, moved into first place in the singles with 650. Making 277 in his third game, he started with nine straight strikes.

Steve's Cafe of Dayton took fourth place among the five-man teams with 2740 pins.

Crowley Enlists In Navy Air Corps

NEW YORK — (UP) — "Sleepy Jim" Crowley, who gained sports immortality as one of Notre Dame's famed Four Horsemen, announced today that he would leave his position as Fordham university football coach and accept a commission in the navy air corps.

He expects to be named a lieutenant commander and assigned to training naval air cadets in the newly-adopted three-month football-type "toughening" system.

TENNIS TEAM WORKS WITH WORN PELLETS

NORMAN, Okla.—(AP)—The start of tennis practice at the University of Oklahoma resembled the preliminaries of a rummage sale.

Too late, Coach Leslie Hewes learned that sporting goods stores were fresh and permanently out of tennis balls. He sent his teams rummaging through their closets.

Practice began with one dozen balls, slightly worn.

Shutouts Pass Up B-League

Every Match In Loop Decided By 2 and 1.

Every match in the Commercial "B" bowling league at Colony alleys last night was decided by the 2-1 count, and the league-leading Jones Chris-Crafts, and second-place deadlocked Ringside and Kent Rummels managed to come in on the heavy end of the count.

* * *

Korn and H. Doolittle tied for high total with 628 while Joe Harrod turned in 621, and Funston 607.

* * *

Stevens had high game of 233, and Doolittle rolled 230.

Big 10 Gets Service Plea

Navy Training Center Wants Conference Tilts.

By TOMMY DEVINE

CHICAGO—(U.P.)—The powerful Big Ten faculty representatives receive recommendations today from conference athletic directors proposing drastic rules revisions for the conduct of their war-time sports programs.

The directors met for 10 hours yesterday, but failed to agree on the drafts of their formal proposals. They were expected to complete action before a joint meeting with the faculty group tonight.

* * *

While a proposed change of the freshman rule, in effect in the Big Ten since 1906 except for a period during the first World war, highlighted the pre-meeting discussion, the major topic which occupied the directors during their long, closed sessions yesterday was that of competition with army and navy teams.

* *

During their night session the athletic directors heard Cook present his request for competition with Big Ten schools

The Great Lakes director declined to indicate how lengthy a grid schedule the sailors would like to play against Big Ten foes.

Under present conference rules, Big Ten teams are limited to eight contests per season, but it was almost certain that permission would be given for at least nine contests for 1942.

In addition to Great Lakes, service teams likely to appear on Big Ten football schedules include the new air cadet training center at Iowa city where Minnesota's former head coach, Bernie Bierman, will handle the grid team; Camp Grant and Chanute Field.

KENYON FINALLY ENTERS TANK AS THE UNDERDOG

GAMBIER —(AP)— For the first time in five years, Kenyon college's swimming team enters the Ohio conference championship meet tonight in the role of underdog.

Champions for four straight years, Kenyon expects to take a trimming from Oberlin, paced by brothers Hugh and Johnny Richards, in the six-team event this week-end. Oberlin has won seven of nine dual meets this winter.

Bucks Picked To Cop Meet

May Break 11-Year Hold By Michigan and Indiana.

CHICAGO —(AP)— Ohio State, always an also ran when Big Ten indoor track titles were being passed around, is the public choice to break the 11-year stranglehold that Michigan and Indiana have had on the championship.

* * *

In 1930 Wisconsin took the team title, but since that time the winner's circle has been reserved for the exclusive use of the Hoosiers and Wolverines. Indiana claimed the crown in 1932, 1933 and last year. Michigan took the honors in 1931 and ran up a string of seven straight victories from 1934 through 1940.

* * *

Preliminaries will be run in six events tonight and the championships will be decided tomorrow night in the University of Chicago fieldhouse. Tonight's trials will narrow the fields in the 70-yard high hurdles 70-yard low hurdles 440-yard dash, 800-yard run, 60-yard dash and broad jump

Ohio State's well-balanced squad is headed by Bob Wright hurdle star whose performances during the indoor season make him the favorite to collect two first places.

Supporting Wright will be George Hoeflinger, best performer of the Big Ten season in the high jump; Captain Ralph Hammond, who shares the best time for the 60-yard dash; Gene Yates, sophomore half-miler who should have plenty to say about the point distribution in that event; Dallas Dupre, ticketed for a first or second in the broad jump; Russ Owen, who should be able to press Bob Ufer, Michigan's defending champion in the quarter-mile

SNEAD HOLDS ONE-POINT ST. PETERSBURG LEAD

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla.—(INS)—Sammy Snead of Hot Springs, Va., defending champion, held a one-stroke advantage over the field today as the $5,000 St Petersburg open golf tournament swung into its second half.

Yanks Present Strange Lineup

Six Holdouts Force Scrambled Array.

By JUDSON BAILEY

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla.—(AP)—The appearance of the New York Yankees became more fantastic than ever today as they lined up for their opening exhibition game with the St. Louis Cardinals.

The determined holdout of six regulars already had established that the New York team entering the grapefruit grind would have to be a collection of misfits. But nobody could foresee the last minute changes Manager Joe McCarthy decided upon.

Ever since camp opened he has been grooming Gerry Priddy for third base and has been playing rookie first baseman, Ed Levy, at second. However, when he announced his batting order for the inaugural at Waterfront park, he put Priddy at second and Levy on third—admittedly because he figured the 6-foot, 5-inch

CHAPTER XX

Judith and Stephen were on the train at noon and in Clinton four hours later. They had lunched on the train, but their conversation had been meagre and casual since she had felt too depressed to talk and he had had the interest in strange faces. Stephen was like a child whose world became more vast each day and who cannot see or grasp or learn enough. His eagerness for knowledge of people and manners and good taste touched her. She thought, "He hasn't found himself. He's drifting, but not floundering as he drifts."

After luncheon they did not talk, but sat in opposite chairs, each staring out of the window.

For her had come the time when there was no fury or pain, but numbness and lethargy. She merely stared at passing landscapes she had once thought beautiful, she felt nothing. Her eyes burned and she closed them against the afternoon sun. When she opened them again, she saw Stephen reaching for their bags.

"Sleepy-head," he said and smiled at her.

When the taxi stopped before her parents' big frame house that looked both solid and indolent in the quiet of a March afternoon, Stephen said, "I'll call you . . . that is, if I may. I'll take your bag up."

"No, it isn't heavy. I'll take it . . . Yes, do call me. Good-bye."

"Good-bye and thank you for—"

"Please don't thank me for anything."

Judith did not glance back at Stephen who watched her slender graceful figure walking up the cement path to the wide front porch. And so she did not see the tenderness and the hope in the eyes of the man who had always wanted the "best."

Bessie, the old colored maid, opened the door and uttered her usual joyful exclamations on seeing her. Then she said, "Your father's the only one that's home, Miss Judith. He had a little cold. He's upstairs in the study. Ain't sick enough to be in bed."

Nicholas Barth was sitting in the old red leather chair in his small, book-flanked study. He wore a familiar blue woolen robe and he was reading when Judith paused in the doorway. He glanced up and blinked through the horn-rimmed spectacles he wore while reading.

"Well!" He chuckled. "Shall I rub my eyes and look again?"

"No. I'm not an apparition. In the flesh." How glad he looked. "Don't get up. I'll come to you to kiss you."

"You'll do nothing of the kind. Do you want a nasty head cold? Sit down and give an account of yourself. I'm all alone. Your dear mother made me stay away from the office today in order to nurse me, but when Harriet called asking her if she would stay with the children while Harriet rushed into town to a sale, the children won. I was relieved. Isobel kills me with kindness." He regarded her inquisitively. "Were you fired or did you quit."

"Neither. I'm on my vacation."

"Oh! Then you must be broke not to have gone somewhere."

"I'm not broke either, Dad."

"You're looking tired."

"I have been."

Folding his large hands, he regarded her again inquisitively, then earnestly. "Well, honey, you'll think I'm an old-fashioned father making noises, but—I've been doing a good bit of thinking about you lately. Funny, when I saw you standing there and remembered that this is a week day, I thought you'd come home . . . to stay.

"I've never interfered with you and I don't intend to begin now. I'm very proud of what you've made of yourself as all my friends will testify. And it isn't because of your mother that I want you back—freedom is too dear even for parents to interfere with—but because I've been thinking that it would be best for you."

He went on, "I'm not referring to such nonsense that you are a young and attractive girl in a big city. You're quite capable of taking care of yourself. It's that—I don't know I can exactly put it into words—but it's that I believe the essence of good living is here rather than in New York for you. You don't believe that, do you? Judith, there is no lonelier person on earth than a lone, successful man or woman."

* * *

He rubbed his forehead and frowned. "A city of three hundred thousand souls isn't a small town. Clinton is a young and growing city where there are innumerable opportunities for young people. New York to me is like a tired, middle-aged woman who uses too much make-up. Or maybe it's because I don't want to see you become one of those lone, successful persons with a place to live in you call home, but which is really a place to have cocktail parties in. That is not the essence of good living.

"I'm a nondescript person. Just a big middle-aged man who pays his taxes and goes to church and has his fun in the movies and over a bridge table. Nobody would turn twice to look at me. But I know the essence of good living because I've had it. Your mother and I have had all of life, Judith. We haven't been cheated or neglected and we haven't been very far from our own fireside. People are mistaken who think that life is more exciting or different elsewhere. The little man or woman on the street you don't notice has often lived more than you and known a higher degree of happiness.

"Happiness isn't something you go out to find. It's in you, and you have to search yourself to find it. Other people may think you are more fortunate than Harriet. She could have made something of herself, too, in some professional capacity. She was good in chemistry and interested in it. I think that Harriet, who hasn't any of the pretty clothes that you have, who has to juggle pennies to make ends meet and who is married to a nice boy who will never be a big success, is more fortunate than you. Because Harriet has love and she is living."

He lifted his heavy dark brows and smiled a half-smile. "I don't pretend to know very much about art, but I've always wanted you to do something that I could hang on the wall here or exhibit in the local museum. Every woman should have a hobby and I'd hoped that art would be yours, a hobby not a business. You used to fool around with oils."

"That was a long time ago." Everything that had happened before Max seemed such a long time ago . . . "I did fool around with oils. I started mother's portrait and decided it was too bad to go on with it."

He smiled again. "Well, Judith, advice is cheap. Older people love to spout to the young. In that one way they think they have the edge over youth. I'm 48 and I've never ceased being astonished at the things human beings do. They're far less predictable than animals. I'm still curious and I'm still learning. You can forget everything I said, but I just wanted to say it once. Consider it or," he grinned, "or check it off to the meditations of an old foggy."

"I wouldn't be at all surprised if everything you said isn't true."

"Fashions in love and living change, but human beings—never." At the sound of a door opening and closing downstairs, he said, "That's probably your mother. She'll be tickled to death to see you. And by the way, Overton's here is being enlarged. It'll be a block long and the last word in department stores. They've a new manager there, an up and coming chap . . . I hear your mother coming up the steps."

* * *

Judith had been home a week a week that had passed quickly, so casually and quietly did one day slip into the next. The days were better than the nights, for her mother and Harriet filled them by suggesting luncheons in town and shopping and movies and driving out in the afternoon and calling on old friends.

How many living-rooms had she sat in during that week looking at familiar faces and utterly banal remarks while her heart had still been crying for Max! But the days were better than the nights when, retiring early, the walls of her room seemed to be closing in on her and she went to sleep on a wet pillow or just stared into the darkness, feeling nothing, caring for nothing.

Both Harriet and her mother had remarked, "You look tired, Judith. You really needed this rest." If only she could rest. But either she was incapable of feeling anything or this inner seething that was part hurt, part bitterness, part disappointment tore at her.

Twice she missed Stephen's telephone call, once because she was in bed and once when she had been out with her mother and Bessie had taken the message that he would call again. It did not matter since Stephen as well as her family seemed queerly remote. Even in the living-room at night with her parents she could not lose that awful sense of being the only person left in the world. It was frightening.

'BERTHA'S EYE'

SCHENECTADY, N. Y.—(U.P.)—Germany's big searchlight popularly known as "Bertha's eye," is no more powerful than lights manufactured in this country.

John E. Block, General Electric company lighting expert, says that the vaunted "eye," used to bathe the English channel at night, is probably nothing stronger than the 60-inch type light produced in this country and in England. The beam, visible for 30 miles, is half a mile wide.

There were 211 trumpeter swans counted in the United States in 1941. The breed has been almost extinct for more than a decade but has increased from 33 counted birds in 1933.

GRAHAM, Mo—(U.P.)—The Decker family believes it has set some kind of a record at the Elkhorn rural school.

For more than 50 years a member of the Decker family has either been a teacher or a pupil at the school.

The tradition started about 1890 when James Decker enrolled. Now one of Decker's daughters is in the seventh grade at the school.

MILD SELLING CONTINUES ON STOCK MARKET

U. S. Rubber Drops To New Low With Reported Fall of Batavia.

NEW YORK—(AP)—Mild selling persisted in today's stock market.

The apparent fall of Batavia to the Japanese invaders and continued bearishness over the tax outlook, brokers said, inspired lightening of commitments.

Among stocks dipping to new lows for the year or longer were U. S. Rubber common and preferred, Du Pont and Eastman Kodak.

Retreating tendencies were displayed by U. S. Steel, Bethehem, American Telephone, Chesapeake & Ohio, Chrysler, General Motors, Johns-Manville, Union Carbide, American Can and Montgomery Ward. The majority of aircrafts and rails held at Thursday's final levels.

Market students scanned the Dun & Bradstreet survey which disclosed a further slackening of retail spending throughout the nation in the current week.

Not overlooked was the announcement of the bureau of labor statistics that its index of wholesale commodity prices, in the week ended Feb. 28, advanced .3 per cent to the highest level since September, 1928. The index was up 20 per cent from a year ago.

I Want To Be Alone

Ailing people often feel that way. They are suspicious of others at times—imagine people are criticizing their appearance. Mrs. Anna Kendall, 621 Fair street, Coshocton, O., says: "I was self conscious and shy about my appearance and preferred to keep to myself. Constipation had become quite a problem and caused a run-down appearance that had me worried. World's Tonic is the finest medicine I have ever taken for constipation relief." If you run out of breath, have to get up nights, belch, have gas attacks, and catch colds easily, all because of constipation, try the famous World's Tonic. Herbs, roots, barks, etc., from different old countries, where many of our ancestors lived, help make World's Tonic a grand, all-round family medicine. Get World's Tonic at Miller, Wm. T. Hursh, Weinberger and all other good drug stores. (J 3)

TOM MOONEY, 58, DIES IN WEST

Labor Leader Had Served 22 Years In Prison For Parade Bombing.

of mass meetings, the key figure in one of the most remarkable legal records in American court history.

Then an obscure labor leader, Mooney on July 22, 1916, was catapulted into international prominence by the explosion of a homemade bomb which burst behind a line of spectators as the Spanish-American war veterans marched along Market street in the preparedness day parade.

The explosion, killing 10 and injuring 40, transformed the crowd into a mob howling "hang the dog."

Within five days Mooney, his wife, Billings, Israel Weinberg, a bus driver, and Edward F. Nolan, labor agitator, were arrested, all on murder charges. They were tried separately, except Nolan, who was not brought to trial.

Billings, only 22, was convicted but because of his youth was sentenced to life imprisonment. Mooney was convicted and sentenced to death. His wife and Weinberg were acquitted.

Labor throughout the world took up Mooney's cry. Demonstrations bordered on riots in Russia, already in the throes of revolution.

President Wilson appealed for clemency in the interest of international affairs. Finally, when the U. S. supreme court refused to act, Governor W. O. Stephens commuted the death sentence to life imprisonment.

Mooney then began a fight for complete exoneration and freedom. Court records became so voluminous their weight was counted in tons.

Meantime Mooney found time, while peeling potatoes in the prison, to keep alive the fires of his fight for freedom as a martyr of labor. In 1937 he entered the political campaign from behind the walls, urging with letters and pamphlets the election of Olson as governor. Olson's election was a spiritual victory, the only one in Mooney's long fight which paid a definite reward — vindication and freedom.

Famed Prisoner Had Hectic Life

(By Associated Press)

Tom Mooney was American labor's foremost "martyr."

He started his career as an iron moulder, wandering from job to job and acquiring an interest in art. He went to Europe in 1907 and was converted to socialism. The "class problem" finally absorbed him. He became a peddler of socialist literature with the Eugene V. Debs "red special" presidential campaign train.

In Stockton, Calif., he met Mrs. Will Hermann, a music teacher. She divorced her husband and married Mooney.

Mooney became a crusading left-winger, known to police as a dangerous "direct actionist." World war days found him in the midst of a bitter San Francisco industrial dispute, organizing street car workers. Like Debs, other socialists were resisting the drift of America toward war. Mooney was one of these.

There were anonymous warnings that the "preparedness day" parade would be bombed. The deadly blast sent police straightaway on a hunt for Mooney and Billings.

They protested their innocence. Several witnesses identified them as being at or near the explosion scene five or ten minutes before the bombing. Billings was quickly convicted but because he was only 22 his life was spared.

Mooney defenders extracted from prosecution possession a photograph showing him and his wife on top of a bulding more than a mile from the bombing scene. Street clocks in the picture indicated it was taken about five minutes before the explosion. The photographs were considered by the defense as absolute alibis for Mooney. They directly contradicted two prosecution witnesses.

One of these witnesses, Frank C. Oxman, Oregon cattleman, subsequently was tried for attempted subornation of perjury, but acquitted. Another, John MacDonald, an itinerant waiter, retracted his original testimony.

The Mooney case meanwhile had gone through all the courts and the conviction had been upheld. A commission appointed by President Wilson held that the prosecution had abused its power in the case against Mooney. Agitation for clemency increased.

The courts refused to interfere, usually on the legal premise that they could not go behind the official record of the case. Two California governors rejected Mooney's pardon applications.

Scarcely two months after his pardon Mooney disclosed he and his wife had separated but denied published report that he had demanded a divorce. He termed the reports "an attempt to smear me and thereby injure the labor movement."

During Mooney's last years in prison and after his release he began to experience periods of illness. A speaking tour of the country was cancelled when he had a recurrence of the illness in Pittsburgh during October, 1939.

POLICE HUNTING FOR 'THIN MAN'

Seek Suspect and Companion In Hotel Room Slaying of Wealthy Refugee.

(By International News Service)

NEW YORK — A smooth-talking" thin man" and a brunette photographer's model who occupied the hotel suite in which Mrs. Susan Flora Reich, wealthy Polish refugee was robbed and slain, were sought by police today.

Mrs. Reich was found yesterday morning suffocated from adhesive tape bound around her mouth and neck. She had been robbed of a diamond ring valued at $1,500 and a platinum pendant and watch worth $500.

Police, surmising Mrs. Reich had been lured to a rendezvous for robbery, if not death, said they were looking for Eli Shonbrun and Madeline Webb. The couple, they said, had registered at Hotel Sutton as Mr. and Mrs. Ted Leopold.

Detectives said Mrs. Reich had met the woman she knew as Madeline Webb for luncheon on Wednesday. The victim's mother, Mrs. Bertha Kolischer, 80, told them her daughter was reluctant to keep the appointment because something told her all was not well.

When Mrs. Reich failed to return home by 10 p. m., her husband, Marion K. Reich, head of a wax-processing plant in Jersey City, notified police that she was missing. Her body was found at 5 a. m., Thursday and Dr. Ralph Kreisberg, house physician, said she had been dead "at least 10 hours."
